Elijah W. Forbs, et at) Disturbing Meetings.

It is disgraceful, imprudent and unprofitable for one party to disturb the meetings or processions of the other. We have always used our best endeavors to keep down anything of the kind. Up to Saturday night we have had no difficulty in this place. On that evening the Democrate returning from Holmesville were met at the station by a large number of our Democratic fellow citizens of the town; a procession was formed and proceeded to march through the principle streets. After passing Count's corner the second time, they were asing Coun's corner the second time, they were assailed by a gang of Republican rowdies with yells, groans and bisses; a number of stones and other missels were thrown at the Democrats, which came very near producing a "free fight." We had thought of publishing the numes of the leaders. had thought of publishing the names of the leaders | September, 13, 1860—n31w3. in this disgraceful transaction, but as most of them were drunk, and some of them have respectable parents and friends we will refrain from giving them their due with the hope that the assault will not be repeated. It is claimed that some Democrats disturbed their meeting; we were not present to know how this was, but if it is true they did wrong. Their principal charge is against the Democratic Their principal charge is against the Democratic Band, and so for as it is concerned the charge is Band, and so for as it is concerned the charge is unjust. The Band was returning from Holmesville and played as they passed along the streets; not knowing that there was any Republican meeting in progress. When the Band passed a crowd of Democrats it was cheered; which is invariably done by both parties on similar occasions.
